DENNIS' PREAKNESS PICKS

#8 Epicenter My top pick Epicenter did everything right in the Kentucky Derby – except win the race. With that said, it's hard to argue against Epicenter (6-5) despite the short odds on him. He tends to hang out near the middle or front of the pack during races, as we saw during the Kentucky Derby, and has the speed needed to be a pace-setter. That will bode well for him in this race. So too will the length. Epicenter finished second at the Kentucky Derby by less than a length but was barely overtaken by longshot Rich Strike during the stretch run. Look for Joel Rosario to have his mount no worse than third in the early going, and in a perfect position to make the same far-turn move that he did in the Derby. Rosario will be looking to break through with a Preakness win after finishing second three times (Ride On Curlin in 2014, Tale of Verve in 2015, and Everfast in 2019) from seven prior runners. Asmussen has sent 14 horses to the Preakness, and he won the race with Hall of Famers Curlin (2007) and Rachel Alexandra (2009). He also finished second last year with Midnight Bourbon and third twice with Astrology in 2011 and Tenfold in 2018. Epicenter would have won a shorter race, and the Preakness is 1/16 of a mile shorter than the Derby. He won the Louisiana Derby, the same length as the Preakness, by 2 1/2 lengths, and it's contested on a main track at Pimlico that favors speed. So it's easy to imagine him finding success in the field. A repeat of his Kentucky Derby should put Epicenter in the Pimlico winner's circle.

#5 Early Voting set modest fractions in the 1 1/8-mile Wood and continued well through the stretch but was caught by Mo Donegal, who rallied from last and defeated him by a neck (Mo Donegal then ran a late-closing fifth in the Kentucky Derby). Top rider Jose Ortiz had a choice and chose to mount Early Voting rather than Simplification. The Wood Memorial (G2) has been remarkably unproductive in recent years, and this colt had everything his way in that race before being run down by the same Mo Donegal who could not catch Simplification for fourth in the Kentucky Derby. Do not be fooled by the inflated lofty speed figures. Every horse who ran in the Wood superfecta reached a new top significantly higher than anything they had before, showing that race is likely an anomaly. He will be pressed and my hypothesis is he will tire late.

#4 Secret Oath has as good of a chance as anyone if the favorite is upset. Secret Oath may present the most value out of the field. The Longines Kentucky Oaks winner takes a back seat to no one in the field, including Derby runner-up Epicenter as both horses earned the same 105 Equibase Speed Figure in their recent Churchill Downs runs. Secret Oath traveled wide through the backstretch, far turn, and into the stretch of the 1 1/8-mile Oaks but was moving well under Luis Saez and took over impressively in early stretch en route to a two-length victory. That was her third win in four starts during 2022, all in stakes, and her only blemish, a third-place effort in the Arkansas Derby, can be chalked up in large degree to a poor start and extremely wide trip through the backstretch. Fillies have held their own in what is considered the easiest of the three Triple Crown races for a filly to contest; do not be surprised if she puts up a good fight or even wins. Because she is a filly facing males, Secret Oath gets a five-pound weight break and carries 121 pounds, compared to 126 for her eight rivals.

#1 Simplification: Like former Antonio Sano star Gunnevera, this honest colt will show up with a good race on a big stage, but he might be a step behind the very best in the division. The Kentucky Derby was the first time in seven starts on the dirt that he has been worse than third, but he was by no means disgraced while running a nice fourth. He is a solid horse to play in trifectas and superfectas, but I would be surprised if he wins. Making life more complicated when it comes to gauging Simplification's Preakness potential is the jockey change from Jose Ortiz to John Velazquez. Not only is Ortiz riding another one of the 2022 Preakness Stakes favorites, Early Voting, he was also Simplification's jockey for his last three races and knows his preferences on the track.

#2 Creative Minister: It might be too much to ask of an allowance winner, but I will take this colt's upside against almost any 3-year-old out there. Touted from the start, he has improved considerably in each of his three races, going from a 76 to a 83 to a 92 on the Beyer scale. Another improvement of 8 points seems possible based on his pattern, which would put him at 100. He finished with authority on the Derby undercard and if he continues to put everything together, he could prove to be this good and carve out a nice price in the exotic wagers.
